Spies: A question of privacy...

George Bush was sworn in as the new director of the CIA yesterday but reporters covering the ceremonies found some delays in filing their stories.

Only those reporters and photographers who are American citizens were permitted to attend the proceedings at the agency's headquarters in Langley, Va., and none was permitted to use a CIA telephone.

Asked why the reporters couldn't use the phones, a CIA spokesman replied: "We're not used to holding press conferences."
